Thank you for purchasing a brand new mf TACTICAL® CSI tactical flashlight with a Cree® LED emitter. We hope you will have many years of enjoyment with your new light, and to insure that you will get the most out of your state-of-the art tactical flashlight, please note the following:

BATTERY CHARGING: Your mf TACTICAL CSI flashlight was designed to use two 3.7 volt rechargeable 14500 Li-Ion batteries. If you purchased our batteries and charger with your CSI, you will note that the positive side of your batteries have a white circle surrounding the contact on the top of the battery, and there is a "+" marking on the side near the positive end of the battery. Please note that it is important that you not place your batteries backwards in the charger, as this can damage your batteries and/or charger. Place the batteries in the charger with the positive (+) sides of your batteries towards the positive (+) side of charger and plug the charger into an outlet. The indicator light will be red while charging, and it will turn green when the batteries are fully charged. When a battery is nearly fully charged, the light may flash between green and red. This is normal function indicating that the charger is in trickle mode. Li-ion batteries have no memory, so you can recharge either when the batteries have been nearly depleted or "top off" partially used batteries at any time without concern for harming batteries.

OPERATION: The batteries are loaded with the positive side towards the lens of the flashlight. After installing two fully charged batteries, turn on the light with a full press of the button (click). You can then cycle through your 5 tactical modes (high, medium, low, strobe and SOS) with a half press of button (no click). To use the memory function, select the mode you would like memorized and leave on in that mode for about 5 seconds. Then turn off and wait another 5 seconds for the memory to set. Then, when you turn the light back on, it will return to your last mode setting and remain in that mode until you change it. Enjoy your Monster!
